ABOUT THIS 'ZINE

The illustrations in this e-'zine were created by participants of the year-long online class, "2014: Year of the Fairy Tale."

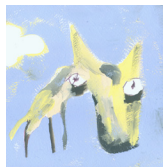

"The Magic Horse" was our seventh fairy tale, and submitting an illustration for this 'zine was an optional assignment.

Each participant chose a magic animal or object to incorporate into this modified tale. Each illustrator also wrote the accompanying text. I hope you enjoy it!

If you would like to contact any of the illustrators, please email me and I'll pass along your request. Thank you!

Once upon a time in the land of Persia there lived in ancient times a king. Now it was the custom in that country for a great festival be held in the new year, during which people of all walks of life presented themselves to the king with offerings.

There were many wonderful gifts that day, but then a sage brought to the king a "magic" horse,

"What can this horse do?" the King asked skeptically.

"I will show you," said the man.

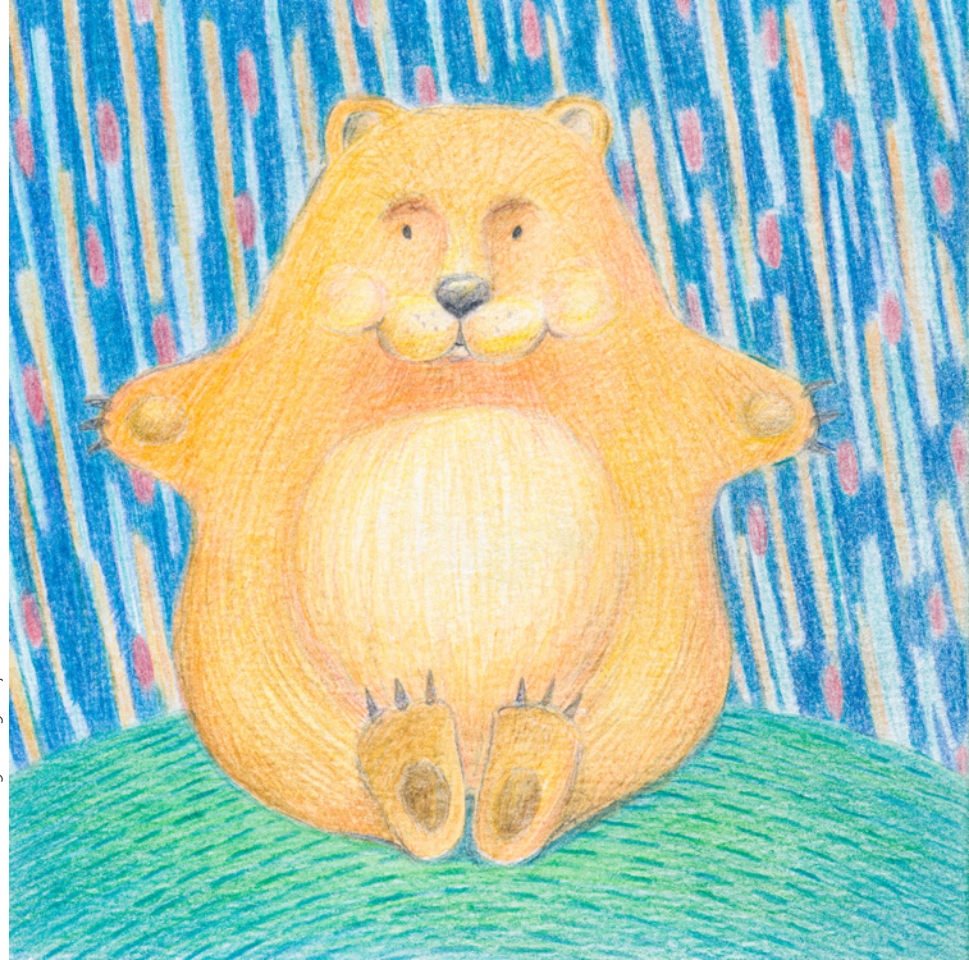

And he pushed a lever behind the left ear of
The Magic Horse and it turned into a magic...
