THE ART OF SILLINESS

An Online Workshop with Carla Sonheim • Session 4 • Saturday, 5/21/11

IT'S SILLY SATURDAY!

... and time for a "drawing"

SCAVENGER HUNT

Here's how it works. You have just under two weeks to draw the following 20 things. You can draw them on separate pieces of paper, in your sketchbook, or on your forearm... your choice! (The Squeen always gives you choices!) Use any media you wish. Check off the boxes as you complete each drawing.

Draw a one-liner of a shoe from "life."

Draw a one-liner of a fire hydrant from life or a photograph.

Draw a one-liner of an elephant from your imagination.

A one-liner of your house.

(worksheet 4.7)

Do three blind contours of your face while looking in the mirror.

(worksheet 4.11)

Go back through your worksheet drawing and pick a favorite. Draw five more times with your wrong hand.

(worksheet 4.1)

Take a walk outdoors around your neighborhood or in a park setting.

Do five drawings of things you "find" in sidewalk cracks, patterns on tree bark, water stains, etc.

These can be highly detailed or very simple line drawings — your choice!

(worksheet 4.3)

Scribble on a page; then "finish" what you've already started.

(worksheet 4.6)

Draw two boxes about 2" x 3" in your sketchbook. Do a drawing of any object, then add shading in pencil.

(worksheet 4.16)

Okay, obviously if you do the whole thing, it will take more than 10 minutes! (If you only want to draw for ten minutes today, great! Just pick 2 or 3 items from the list above.) But if you draw all 20 items by the last day of the Silly Workshop — Thursday, June 2, 2011 — and email telling me you did it, you will get a PRIZE! Good luck! (carla@carlasonheim.com)
