Sun Day

Silly: It's good for the souly-soul-soul.

It's a poem
by a Silly Person!

A Granny Is An Apple

A granny is an apple,
A Bartlet is a pear,
A Navel is an orange,
We buy them at the fair.

A rock is a lobster,
An angel is a fish,
A comet is a falling star,
Be sure to make a wish.

A toadstool is a mushroom,
A willow is a tree,
A snapdragon's a flower,
Come pick some with me.

Come dance around the garden,
Come swimming in the pool,
Play hopscotch on the sidewalk,
Right after school.

We'll climb the trees together,
Pick flowers where they grow,
We'll snack on milk and cookies,
And watch the sunshine glow.

We'll take a plane to Paris,
We'll take the train to Rome,
We'll travel all around the world,
And all the way back home.

Drawing Exercise #8

ILLUSTRATE THIS POEM!

Illustrate Sandra's poem in the space below. Don't think too much... just draw the first thing that pops into your head. Then draw the next thing... and then the next. Keep going until you are finished!

EXTRA CREDIT

Take some time today to look through the drawings you have created over the past week or so. Pay attention to which exercises you liked and which ones you didn't like. What assignments made you feel "free"? Uncomfortable? Just by being aware of what you like and don't like (and sticking to the things you "like" when you are on your own) will help positively shape your drawing routine.
