the art of SILLINESS!

An Online Workshop with Carla Sonheim

Wednesday

Because "silly" is the new black.

Drawing Exercise #6

TAKE INSPIRATION FROM ANYTHING

I see "creatures" everywhere I go. They're in plant shadows, sidewalk cracks, peeling paint, fire hydrants, building ornamentation, clouds, water marks, and trash... when you start looking you will suddenly see them everywhere, too!

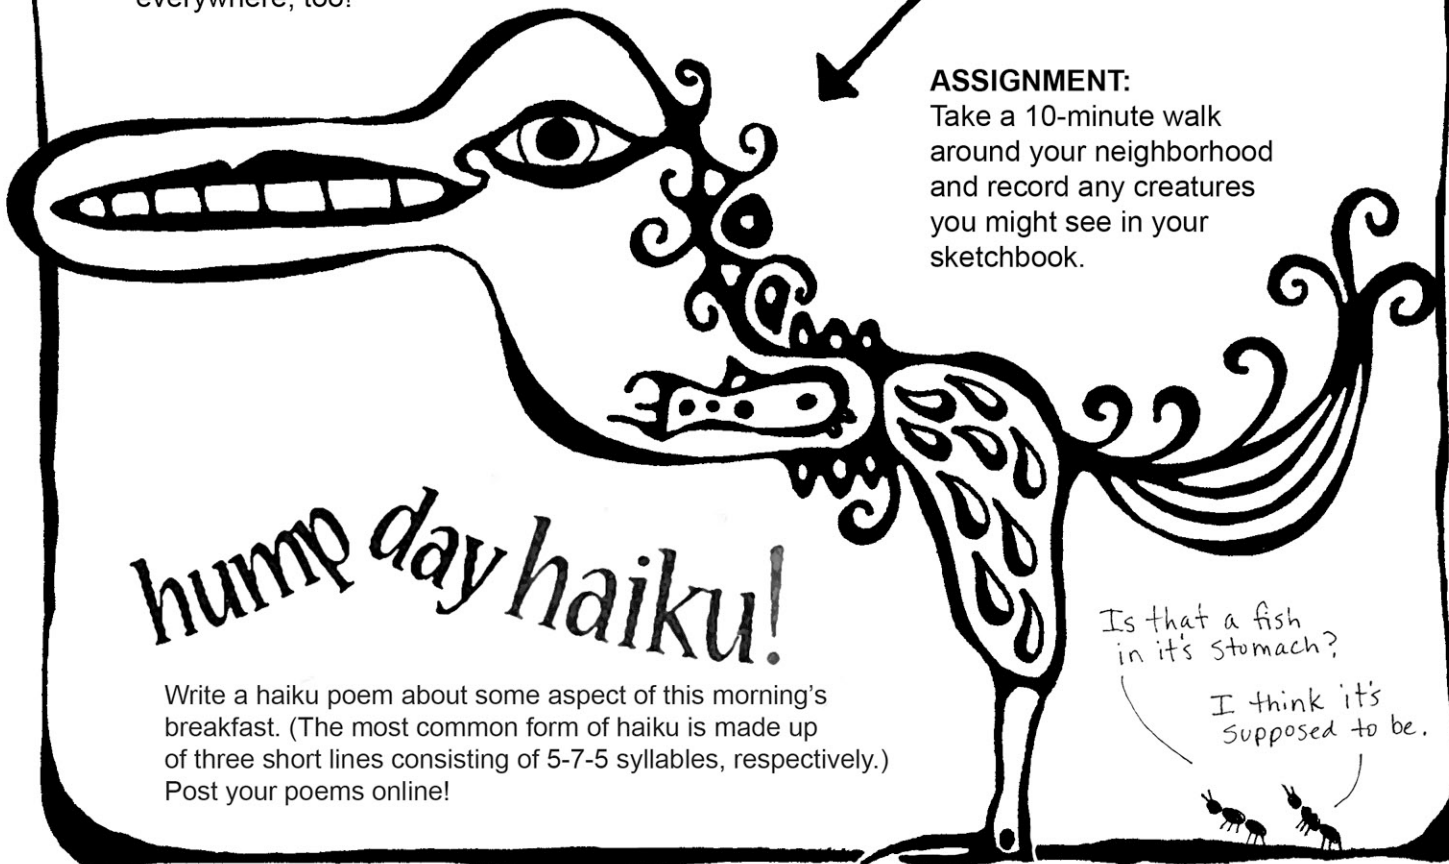

Photo taken while waiting for a freight train.

Do you see the resemblance?

ASSIGNMENT:

Take a 10-minute walk around your neighborhood and record any creatures you might see in your sketchbook.

hump day haiku!

Write a haiku poem about some aspect of this morning's breakfast. (The most common form of haiku is made up of three short lines consisting of 5-7-5 syllables, respectively.) Post your poems online!

Is that a fish in its stomach?

I think it's supposed to be.

EXTRA CREDIT

Pick the creature you like the best and create an imaginary animal using your quick sketch as a starting point.
